Mel's Buffalo Check Wallpaper

Mel's Buffalo Check Wallpaper is a plaid style design featuring large blocks formed by intersecting bands of colour. The style was made famous in the wild west because of the popular warm fabrics from Scotland that were traded with Native American tribes. It eventually became synonymous with hard-wearing, durable clothing and lumberjacks like Paul Bunyan. In more modern times, the flannel style has become popular in haute couture. The plaid design also makes for a versatile wallpaper style using a cross-checked pattern in pink, blue, grey, green and black & white colour options. It's a perfect addition to bedrooms and nurseries and is suited for both masculine and feminine spaces. It has a lovely, simple yet rustic appeal.
